

DETAILS

After years of research, planning, and budgeting, Historic Congressional Cemetery is pleased to offer a new section for pets called Kingdom of Animals. Appropriately located across from the popular “Doggie Day Spa,” where a natural spring comes above ground, the dedicated new section is 12 feet by 100 feet and contains 399 individual pet sites for the inurnment of cremated remains. The first and only of its kind in Washington, DC, it is defined by a solid wood fence along the rear forest and a low, curved wrought iron fence with two gates on the front, facing Prout Street.

Each individual site measures 18 inches square and can accommodate up to 12 sets of cremated remains. Purchases include a granite flat marker of your choice, with a free engraving of the pets’ names.

All pets are welcome – dogs, cats, birds, reptiles, goldfish – you name it!

In addition to the individual sites for pets, we have created a series of granite columns that will mark communal graves. Each side of the column can accommodate up to 10 cremated remains, with names and dates engraved on the column itself. One column will be dedicated to K9 Corps members, whose cremated remains can be buried along with their other canine friends from the Cemetery.

Other columns are reserved for:

of all varieties

Individual column sides can be purchased by an individual for all their pets, or an entire column can be purchased by a family or group of friends. Priced from $350 to $3,000, the section offers a dignified place to visit and remember beloved pets in the heart of Capitol Hill.
